A Day in the Life

First of the Morning—Holy Wow! What Happened at the party last night???

Into the laundry basket while Mom cleans our room Wow! That party was wild!!!!

Then it's back to our bed after the cleaning. Everyone line up for inspection!

Nice and clean now...for a little while!
Mom is putting down paper and then our bed so we learn to keep our sleep area clean. In a couple of weeks, we'll start to eat puppy food and a crate will be attached to our x-pen. That way, we'll learn to sleep in the crate, use the paper for bath room breaks and the rest of the room will be for playing with toys. Then we'll start going outside every couple of hours for learning to use the bathroom outside.

Thinking about the day's agenda....

How big am I now (3 weeks old)? Oh, a little bigger than a cantaloupe.

Or a box of Morton's Salt.

What I do during the day?

Learning to walk—not too steady yet, so I keep my head low to the ground while I work on moving my legs.

Also, I still like to sleep.

The best thing is to sleep in a pile with my brothers and sisters.

Oh, and I'm learning to sing a little and make doggie sounds,

Pretty soon though, I'll get a hair cut and then I'll look like a real Aire...hey, wait a minute, THOSE aren't Airedales!!! That human mom has a wacky sense of humor. We gotta watch her!!
